

September 27, 2013

Alpha 7 Trading Academy Launches New Day Trading Courses

Brooklyn, NY (PRWEB) September 27, 2013

Representatives with Alpha 7 Trading Academy announced today that it has released new courses in what it calls the most comprehensive day trading courses available anywhere on the Web.

"We are excited to launch our new line of courses which we feel are the most comprehensive and thorough training courses on the top of intraday stock trading available on the market today," said Ed Gitlin, director of Alpha 7 Trading Academy (<http://alpha7trading.com/>).

Gitlin went on to explain that the Alpha 7 Trading Academy moves theory to actual practice by giving new and experienced traders the ability to hone their trading and risk-management skills through one of the most intensive and well-renowned educational programs available for mastering the art of intraday trading.

Designed, developed and narrated by best-selling trading author, Jea Yu. Jea, who has more than 15 years of active participation in US Equities, Futures and Options Markets.

The new courses, according to Gitlin, are specifically designed for day traders, proprietary trading, and stock traders, and are administered electronically via a state-of-the-art Online Learning Management System (LMS).

The LMS software application, Gitlin noted, allows its instructors to administer online training courses.

"Along with creating, managing and delivering, our instructors can also track the progress of our students by accessing detailed reports and statistics that LMS Software provides ensuring uniformity and continuity in learning and training," Gitlin said. "A unique feature of our proprietary trading training programs is that they provide learners online classrooms where they can interact and learn in an interactive environment."

The company spokesman noted that its certification qualifies students for unique placement opportunities. Upon completion of the course and passing of the final exam, traders may be offered an opportunity to trade for a US based Investment Advisory Firm. As to the effectiveness of the course, one user identified as Osiris786, in his online review, gave it two thumbs up.

“I’ve read a few books of Jea (Short-term Profit Hunter and Trading Full Circle). When I came across the course, I was pleased to see it is developed and narrated by Jea,” the review said. “The education seems very thorough and is definitely taught by one of the most well-qualified instructor for this topic. I registered for the program starting Sept. 1. You have to complete the training and exam with a good score if you plan on getting recruited. It is definitely a better structure than many other props where some random failed trader is teaching you. Here I know that doing well in the course will lead me to be hired. I’ve traded with other firms before and even got a Series 56 hoping that would help but sadly the materials are not at all related to trading. I’m excited to start the program knowing that it is being taught by Jea and overseen by real hedge-fund managers trading for themselves.”

Along with the wealth of information provided by best-selling trading author Jea Yu, Alpha7Trading.com’s trading courses are specifically overseen and assessed by multiple private-equity fund managers assuring users the most comprehensive and straight-forward approach to demonstrate their qualifications to a number of private-equity firms consistently on the lookout for talented traders.